Outdoor Equipment

Mason will be taking a camping trip to Durango, Colorado. He needs to purchase sleeping bag for this trip. This is a 4-day backpacking trip to a wilderness and mountainous area. He will need a sleeping bag that is easy to store and carry on his pack. The temperatures in July can drop quickly below 30 degrees, so it needs to be a sleeping bag that will keep him warm at night, as well as keep him dry. This is Mason's first backpacking experience, but he really likes the outdoors and is already looking forward to more trips like this. He has budgeted $100 to purchase a sleeping bag. Which sleeping bag would be his best choice?

Sunglasses

Melanie is going tubing on the Guadalupe River and forgot his shades for the long tube ride. The local sporting goods and outfitters store has a small selection of shades to pick from, so her choices are limited to what she finds on the rack. What is most important is that she needs a pair that can protect her eyes from UV rays, and will be especially helpful if they can cut down on glare off the water as well. Seeing stumps or rocks below the waterline is a huge plus to avoid getting stuck or worse flipped over. Her budget is $30 because she knows that if she drops them, she's going to lose them unless they can float. So, he wants the cheapest pair that will provide the best protection.

Mystery Class – Window Film

Alexandra's needs to install permanent quality window film on the windows on the west side of her home to block the damaging UV rays of the sun and heat. She wants to reduce the damage to her furnishings from UV rays and bright sunlight while still enjoying the outdoor light and being able to see out the windows all the time, but still wants privacy from passersby on the road. She also wants to block the heat that comes through the windows to keep those rooms in the house cooler. She has 8 windows to cover. Each window is 2 feet wide by 5 feet high (about 10 square feet), for a total of 80 square feet to cover. She would prefer to have it applied to the outside of the windows and she does not want seams in the middle of the panes. She wants each window to have a solid piece of film. Her budget is about $30 per window.
